At the end of the executive summary, add

(e) The current reimbursement arrangements based on national legislation but subject to a ceiling that the Member States will determine.

The present report discusses an additional option and compares all five options according to the four criteria and determines that only options (b) and (c) meet all of the conditions. It recommends that, of these two options, the General Assembly adopt option (c) because it is more straightforward to administer and also offers significant protection to the Organization in the event of catastrophic loss of life or serious injury.
